The next examples come from short stories that I should have read during my first years of university. While removing the envelope, he discovers that his necklace is not more around his neck. Conclusion during the drafting of this research article, I learned more about irony, its types and its use in language. At the party, Mathilde is the most beautiful woman present, and everyone notice it. At 4 in the morning, she finally searches for Monsieur Loisel, who has been naming for hours in a deserted room. These two characters are very important for this story, because all the actions contained in it are connected with them. Get your tailor -made essay on a ¢ a € A œ the Jewels a € A A A New! The intelligent pairing with the writer Barry Brummet (expert in close reading techniques) in one of his speeches said that he is $\hat{a} \notin \hat{a}$ $\hat{a} \in \hat{A}$ the story It was published for the first time in a collection of tales of Maupassant in 1885. 2. It was married to a humble employee of the Ministry of Education, which can afford to provide her only a modest but not uncomfortable lifestyle. Verbal irony: this happens when a character says one thing but suggests or intends the opposite. In fact, she could, but, because of these words, she became proud of herself, and inside her came to the conclusion that she could deserve a better man or a better life. Two main characters of a ¢ Å Å the jeweler Å are Monsieur Lantin and his first wife. After that he marries another girl. This misery lasts ten years, but in the end they repaid financial debts. Another irony in Romeo and Giulietta is that the reader remains aware of the fact that Giulietta takes Sleeping portion to simulate death, and in the end, when he reproached her for wearing fake jewels instead of being $\hat{a} \in \hat{A} \in \hat{A}$ and grace. $\hat{c} \hat{A} = \hat{A}$ and $\hat{c} \hat{A$ declarations, by the entire text. We can understand it in lines a ¢ Â Â would be impossible to conceive any attention, tenderness, ludic caress that she did not lavish on her husband of her a ¢ Â Â I think she loved her husband. Irony in literature here I wanted to list several examples from literature, through which, we could understand what irony is more clearly. With the progress of the story, we realize that neither families are dignified. Mr. Lantin was shocked, while she was alive, $\hat{a} \in$ had so much money to buy this type of expensive jewelry, so, she is deceived with someone. Reading people's responses to her works, they admired him, because her stories contain the face of our daily life and our problems. They are both tired and irrevocably damaged by these years of difficulty. He tells her to write to Mrs. Forestier and to tell her that she broke the closure of the necklace and is adjusting her. He implores her to visit Mrs. Forestier and to tell her that she broke the closure of the necklace and is adjusting her. He implores her to visit Mrs. Forestier and borrow something from her. He implores her to visit Mrs. Forestier and to tell her that she broke the closure of the necklace and is adjusting her. orders expensive meals, and boasts of everyone who is rich, but, he is saying several quantities of money to everyone. When they finally come home, Mathild is saddened that the night is over. They paid for good food of her, refined wine and the house luxuriously furnished. We can call it realistic history. For this reason, Otello unjustly kills his wife, we can see the contradiction between ciÃ² which Å said and ciÃ² which Å implicit. Compensation in this story money. The story, mentioned in this research paper, Å @ÂThe JewelerÂÂ highlights how we can be unaware of the things that happen around us. The MaupassantÂÂs stories were popular nowadays Å which were in the 19th century. Madame Forestier doesn't recognize her, and when Mathilde identifies, Madame Forestier can't help but exclaim to be different. Chapter I Irony The Greek etymology of the word irony, $\tilde{A}\tilde{A}\tilde{A}$ μ μ μ \tilde{A} \tilde{A} a radical verb of Greek It very similar to sarcasm, although the sarcasm \tilde{A} rough and direct while the verbal irony \tilde{A} interesting to read because it contains irony. Her husband stubbornly insists on the sum, but accepts that we feel more happy to have fun and not to worry about what we are doing or who we are doing it with. But even this at the beginning of the story, the author states that A @ ÂÂThe young girl seemed to be the ideal of that fine pure woman to whom every young person dreams of entrusting money from all kinds of sources, mortgaging the rest of their existence. "Two families, both equally in dignity ", the opening line of Shakespeare's play leads the reader to believe that both Capulet and Montague's families are worthy of respect that are given to Verona. While close to her husband, she was the wife, tender and most caring child. became famous all over the world with the help of his great works. Lantin had not stopped going to the theater with his wife, then probably another man would not have the opportunity to flirt with her and become her lover. Chapter II. It's not just when we don't mention it, but it can happen every day and at any time with anyone. Mathilde says the change was on her account and explains the long saga of losing the necklace, replacing it and working for ten years to repay debts "The Jewels" by Guy de Maupassant Summary the story of "The Jewels" takes place in Paris. Lucky forgot about his past relationship with the montersor and led him to fatality. Her focus would be on her husband or the stage, not another man. She moves her bare shoulders in an envelope and warns her to wait inside, away from the cold night air, while taking a taxi. After seeing places like their home, theater, jeweler shops and so forth. A overwhelmed by gratitude to the generosity by Madame Forestier. The two ideas can be easily confused, but there is a very distinct difference between the ironic and the ironic cA² which A[°] simply good or bad luck. Lantin, his salaries were supplemented by his wife's lovers. It' possible that for these reasons she was tired of that routine and wanted to try something new. We can see that Lantins' wife likes to go to cinemas and loves fake jewelry. He doesn't have any jewelry or fancy clothes, yet these are the only things he lives for. They keep looking for the necklace. ainorI ainorI iul a ²Acided is nitnaL id eilgom aL .anu onavort en etnemlanif e elimis analloc anu onacrec ,ireilleioig itlom It has always been a fascinating object to study, and it is widely known and popular to use in modern time as in literature as in the speech. One was like she behaved while she was at home with her husband, and the second is outside her. In 㠢 ⠀ œThe jewelerâ £ Â the reader can see what ironic games life can play with us and which conclusion it can take us. Terrified, she sits and waits for him. Conclusion in chapter I in general, the irony is the difference between there that someone makes or says in relation to this that it is understood of this that is made or said. Her life has completely changed, he could rule â the accounts of her and soon entered the debts. We should follow this rule while reading several genres of writing, because writers use irony to maintain the attention of readers "and make their works more interesting. Conclusion in chapter II in conclusion, the story stressed that the appearance can be misleading and that sometimes we are blind of what is really happening. Landin married and lived a rather good life, but, I wondered why he also took part in the house holding of the house or even to look at what sphere and what amount of money he was spent on his wife. A If M. Lanin forgot everything about the business A his wife, and it was deluded that everything will go well to become rich. When we see the irony of the situation, we could think that the circumstances are unjust or unfortunate "for example, if an avid millionaire buys a lottery ticket and wins millions additional. Â $\hat{A} \in$ we know with what kind of man he went out, but it is obvious that he could easily hide his feelings of him, so he had two faces. Madame Forestier agrees to lend her jewels to Mathilde, and Mathilde selects a diamond necklace.
